TO THE SQUATTERS ON THE MARREROO, AND THE NEIGHBOURING STATIONS.

GENTLEMEN—I beg leave to state that I shall be prepared by the latter end of February next, to boil down any quantity of stock that may be sent for that purpose, at my station Pambula, at the usual terms; and I trust that from the experience I have had, and the arrangements made for the purpose of convenience and despatch I shall be able to give perfect satisfaction.

WILLIAM HIBBARD.
Pambula, November 22. 8504

THE undersigned, while engaged in making experiments upon the manufacture of Vinegar from Australian Wood, discovered that it contained properties superior to any other for the making of blacking, and has succeeded in producing an article of unquestionable superiority, and which must eventually supersede the necessity of its importation, notwithstanding the prejudice against colonial manufactures.

The Imperial Enamel Blacking, after a few applications, produces a smooth, flexible surface, little inferior to enamelled leather; it retains its colour and polish, does not become soft in damp weather, while the large quantity of oil employed, and the peculiar properties of the wood vinegar, which contain the tanning principle in abundance, affords a nourishment to the leather which no other can possess.

He has likewise prepared from Australian Wood the Antiseptic Fluid, which, with the addition of a small quantity of oil, preserves and flavours meat and fish. It speedily imparts to pork and beef all the flavour of the Westphalia and Glasgow ham, hung beef, smoked beef, &c., at a trifling expense. The use of this fluid will be found particularly useful and economical during the summer, in affording an agreeable relish, and preventing the attack of fever.

Parties wishing to try the preservative properties of the Pyroligneous Acid upon animal substances, particularly hides and parchment for packing tallow, can obtain it by applying at the Manufactory, Dixon-street, near Liverpool-street.

ROSE BAY HOTEL.

THOMAS MARTIN tenders his best thanks to his supporters generally since opening the above establishment, and has the pleasure of informing them that having undertaken the improvement of that portion of the road immediately approaching the hotel, the only obstacle that has hitherto prevented many individuals from visiting this pleasant spot, may now be considered as removed.

T. M., in soliciting a continuance of patronage from the respectable portion of the community, promises that comfort and economy shall ever distinguish this agreeable retreat. In consequence of a few individuals having (it is presumed other interests to serve) falsely represented the charges at Rose Bay, the advertiser deems it necessary to affirm, for the information of those unacquainted therewith, that his prices for all wines, spirits, and cordials are the same as charged in all respectable houses in the metropolis, where reliance can be placed in the quality of the article, and for bottled ale and porter, the uniform charge is one shilling and sixpence.

Dinners and refreshments generally prepared (as usual) for large or small parties, who may at all times command the use of a commodious and safe boat for fishing or other purposes free from charge.
An ordinary every Sunday at two o'clock, instead of one as heretofore. 9102

SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.
CORNER OF CLARENCE AND ERSKINE-STREETS.

A. J. LEVY begs to apprise his Friends and the public in general, that he has received direct from London, a supply of wines and spirits of the best brands, which he intends selling at such low prices as will defy competition.

A. J. L. assures the public that this is no puff; that he must sell to make room for arrivals daily expected; and further begs to inform them that his Saloon has been redecorated, which he flatters himself he displays as any in the colony; he will let the same for weddings, balls, concerts, &c., on moderate terms.

Weddings and dinners got up in the best style, and on the shortest notice.
Families and parties will find their advantage by procuring their supply at
SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

ARTHUR GRAVELLY, Manufacturer and Ironmonger, continues to make the Cooking Apparatus, introduced by himself, which has gained so much celebrity in this and the neighbouring colonies—in view suitable for the smallest family and the largest hotel or public institution—being made from eighteen inches to six feet in length. The surpassing comfort, cleanliness, safety, and economy of this excellent article, are universally admitted. One is constantly in use and on view on the premises.

Baths of every description made of galvanised iron for sale, or to be let on hire.
A fresh assortment of Cornices, for the relief of deafness, just completed.

S. D. GORDON respectfully informs the public that every article in the wine and spirit trade, sugar, tea, salt, and all kinds of country supplies, can be had at his store, at the lowest possible prices.

A call is solicited from persons in want of supplies, when he hopes to be able to convince them it will be to their interest to purchase from him.

TAKE CARE OF THE FENCE AND THE FOUNDS WILL TAKE CARE OF THEMSELVES.

BUY LAVERS AND CO.'S PASTE BLACKING.

NO one desirous of promoting the prosperity of this colony should treat the above advice with indifference, under the impression that his individual consumption of blacking is trifling, and that it can matter little to the community whether it be made in the colony or imported.

IT IS A FACT
That if each inhabitant uses on an average one penny worth of blacking per month, the quantity annually consumed in the colony amounts in value to upwards of
TEN THOUSAND POUNDS!!!

J. V. LAVERS AND CO. pledge themselves the absolute best quality of paste blacking imported; it is far more portable, and can, without trouble, be converted into liquid blacking at one-third of the cost of the latter. It is made from materials produced by colonial industry, and deserves to be supported by all.

The attention of COUNTRY BUYERS

Is particularly directed to this advertisement, as by the introduction of paste blacking instead of liquid, the carriage on this article will be reduced to a sum merely nominal.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.

A NOTHER SURPRISING CURE!

Campbelltown, April 11, 1848.
To Mr. HAYDON.

Sir,—I feel it a duty incumbent on me, to let the community at large know the Wonderful Cure that has been performed on me by the effects of Holloway's Medicine. I have, for the last six months, been afflicted with the liver complaint, and at last was compelled to take to my bed in a very low state, so bad that I did not think I would ever rise in health again. After trying medical aid, and finding no relief, I was advised by Mr. William Bursill to try the Medicine aforementioned, which I did, and after one or two doses of Holloway's Pills, and rubbing in the Ointment, I found great relief, and by strictly following the rules laid down by Mr. Holloway, and using his Pills and Ointment for six weeks, I find myself in the enjoyment of as good health as ever I possessed in my life. The truth of this statement is incontestable, as there is not one of my neighbours but could testify the same.—I remain, &c.,

ROBERT ELKINS.
Blacksmith, Campbelltown.

This Wonderful Medicine can be recommended with the greatest confidence for any of the following Diseases:—

NOW OFFERED.

JOSEPH THOMPSON AND SON, in submitting the following list for the inspection of the Ladies of Sydney, and also to Settlers in the up-country, would remark—These goods have been selected by their agent, both in London and Manchester, with every possible care and attention, and having been purchased at a time when the markets were depressed by Continental struggles and other causes, have been obtained at a remarkable low rate. This, together with the great depression now existing in the colony, arising from the tremendous sacrifices made on the staple article wool, has induced them to make considerable reductions, not only in the price of their former extensive stock, but also to mark their new goods at such unusually low prices as will insure their speedy sale, and render it apparent to all purchasers they will effect a considerable saving in making purchases at their establishment.

Joseph Thompson and Son feel it superfluous to make any comment on the quality of the goods imported by their houses.

The texture, style, and durability of the various articles, being so well known and appreciated by all who have extended their favours to the establishment for a series of years.

PROBATION OF PARLIAMENT.

PARLIAMENT was prorogued by the Queen in person on the 5th September. Her Majesty spoke as follows:—

My Lords and Gentlemen,—
I am happy to be able to release you from the duties of a laborious and protracted session.

The Act for the Prevention of Crime and Outrage in Ireland, which received my assent at the commencement of the session, was attended by the most beneficial effects. The open display of arms intended for criminal purposes was checked; the course of justice was no longer interrupted; and several murderers who had spread terror through the country were apprehended and convicted.

The distress in Ireland consequent upon successive failures in the production of food, has been mitigated by the application of the law for the relief of the poor, and by the amount of charitable contributions raised in other parts of the United Kingdom.

On the other hand, organised confederacies took advantage of the existing pressure to excite my suffering subjects to rebellion. Hopes of plunder and confiscation were held out to tempt the distressed, while the most visionary prospects were exhibited to the ambitious. In this conjuncture I applied to your loyalty and wisdom for increased powers; and strengthened by your prompt concurrence, my government was enabled to defeat, in a few days, machinations which had been prepared during many months. The energy and decision shown by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland in this emergency, deserves my warmest approbation.

In the midst of these difficulties, you have continued your labours for the improvement of the law; the Act for Facilitating the Sale of Incumbered Estates will, I trust, gradually remove an evil of great magnitude in the social state of Ireland.

The system of perpetual entails of land, established in Scotland, produced very serious evils both to heirs of entail and to the community; and I have great satisfaction in seeing it amended upon principles which have long been found to operate beneficially in this part of the United Kingdom.

I have given my cordial assent to the measures which have in view the improvement of the public health, and I entertain an earnest hope that a foundation has been laid for continual advances in this beneficial work.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,—

I have to thank you for the readiness with which you have granted the supplies necessary to the public service. I shall avail myself of every opportunity which the exigencies of the state may allow for enforcing economy.

My Lords and Gentlemen,—
I have renewed in a formal manner, my diplomatic relations with the government of France. The good understanding between the two countries has continued without the slightest interruption.

Events of deep importance have disturbed the internal tranquillity of many of the States of Europe, both in the north and in the south. These events have led to hostilities between neighbouring countries. I am employing my good offices, in concert with other friendly powers, to bring to an amicable settlement these differences, and I trust that our efforts may be successful. I am rejoiced to think that an increasing sense of the value of peace, encourages the hope that the nations of Europe may continue in the enjoyment of its blessings.

Amidst these convulsions I have had the satisfaction of being able to prepare for my own dominions, and to maintain our domestic tranquillity. The strength of our institutions has been tried, and has not been found wanting. I have studied to preserve the people committed to my charge, in the enjoyment of that temperate freedom which they so justly value. My people on their side, feel too sensibly the advantages of order and security, to allow the promoters of pillage and confusion, any chance of success in their wicked designs.

I acknowledge with grateful feelings the many marks of loyalty and attachment which I have received from all classes of my people. It is my earnest hope that by cultivating respect to the law, and obedience to the precepts of religion, the liberties of this people may, by the blessing of Almighty God, be perpetuated.

CASE OF MR. JUSTICE WILLIS.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, SEPTEMBER 4.
MR. HAMILTON said, he had a question to ask in some degree of a personal nature, and which the Under-Secretary for the Colonies had been good enough to undertake to answer. Some time ago a gentleman with whom he (Mr. Hamilton) was connected both by relationship and friendship, Mr. Willis, had been removed from the office of Judge of the Supreme Court of New South Wales, under circumstances into which it was not his intention to enter on the present occasion. Several petitions on the subject had been laid on the table of the House. The friends of Mr. Willis, and Mr. Willis himself, feeling the removal of a Judge was calculated to create an unfavourable impression with regard to his personal honour, and character, were desirous of having some explanation on the subject. He would therefore ask the hon.

gentleman, whether in reference to the removal of Mr. Willis, late a Judge of the Supreme Court of New South Wales, if there was anything in the circumstances connected with his removal calculated to derogate from his personal honour, integrity, or character?
MR. HAWES had no hesitation in stating that there was nothing in the circumstances attending the removal of Mr. Justice Willis from the bench at all affecting his personal honour and integrity. He thought it right to add that Mr. Willis had addressed a letter some time ago to Lord Grey, which was to the same purport as the question just put by the hon. gentleman, and from Lord Grey he had received an answer which was to the same effect as that which he, (Mr. Hawes) had just given.

IRELAND.

ARRIVAL OF LORD JOHN RUSSELL.
DUBLIN, Saturday, August 31.—At half-past three o'clock a steamer appeared in the distance, and a signal from the Birkhead was steamer elicited a reply to the effect that the strange smoke was from the Banahoe, commanded by Captain Smith, and that Lord and Lady John Russell were on board. A gun was then fired, and the spectators on the pier were apprised of the near approach of Her Majesty's Prime Minister, an event of rare occurrence in Ireland. About ten minutes after four o'clock, the bow of the Banahoe turned the eastern pier of the harbour, when Captain Williams, of the Iron Duke steamer, commenced a feu de joie, and did not cease till the Banahoe came well up to the pier. Messrs. G. Rae, J. Magee, J. Finn, and other directors of the Dublin and Kingstown Railway, went on board and paid their respects to his Lordship. The Lord Mayor likewise discharged this duty, and several strangers expressed their gratification at seeing Lord and Lady J. Russell.

The lower orders present did not shout, but they did not groan, as some apprehended they would do. One fellow roared out "a cheer for Mitchell," another "a cheer for Repeal," but there was no response.

His Lordship and Lady J. Russell were then conducted to the terminus of the Kingston railway, where a special train was in waiting, and in eight minutes after starting it arrived in Dublin. Here again a large assemblage of persons of the middle and lower orders was present. The moment his Lordship was recognised a faint cheer was raised. An attempt to get up a groan failed. The distinguished visitors got into one of the Lord Lieutenant's carriages which was in waiting, and before five o'clock they reached the Viceroy's Lodge at the Park.

Lord and Lady John Russell drove through Dublin to-day in the carriage of the Lord Lieutenant. His Excellency and the Countess of Clarendon accompanied their distinguished visitors. The absence of ostentation in the equipage of the party to the Park, was the most public parts of the city without attracting attention.

(From Bell's Messenger, September 9.)

Lord John Russell will, it is understood, leave Dublin this day (Saturday) for Balmoral, where he will join the Royal party. Nothing of an official nature has transpired respecting the precise objects of his Lordship's visit to Ireland; neither have his movements afforded any clue to satisfy the public curiosity. On Wednesday his Lordship paid a visit to several of the public buildings in Dublin.

At the special commission fixed to open at Clonmel on the 19th instant, the grand jury will be addressed by Chief Justice Blackburne, and bills of indictment for high treason will be sent before them against Messrs. W. S. O'Brien, Magner, Leyne, O'Donoghue, and the other leaders then in custody for the insurrectionary movements in Tipperary. The jurors will be taken from the grand panel of the county to Mr. Butt, Q.C., will be one of the leading counsel for the prisoners with Mr. Whiteside, Sir Colman O'Loughlin, Mr. Holmes, and other distinguished lawyers.

Captain Husband, late Poor-law Inspector of the North and South Dublin Unions, has been appointed commissioner, in the room of the late William J. Hancock, Esq., deceased. Mill-street Convict, who has been closely searched for suspected rebels a few days since. The "flying column," under General McDermott, has received orders to disperse, and this week the camp will be broken up, and the troops will march to their winter quarters.

At an auction in the village of Moynalty a few days since the wheelbarrows, crowbars, picks, &c., formerly used by the Board of Works in the barony of Lower Kells, the articles sold realised about one-twentieth of the original cost. Amongst the collection, 1000 barrows, that cost 10s. each, were sold at 6d. and 7d. The latter price was the highest given.

The celebrated "Sam Gray" died at his residence in Ballibay, county Monaghan, on the 2nd instant. A large body of Orangemen attended his funeral.

We regret to announce the death, by drowning, of Mr. Francis Gould, barrister, eldest son of the late Master Gould, which melancholy event occurred on Thursday week on the coast of Sligo. Mr. Gould, with his brother Robert, were on a visit with Sir Robert Gore Booth, and on Thursday morning went out in a boat on the Atlantic to shoot seals. In the course of the day a heavy squall came on which upset the boat; the elder brother was drowned—the second was brought to shore in such a state of exhaustion that he did not regain consciousness for upwards of two hours.

A melancholy and fatal accident took place at Ballinasc Pierhead, on Tuesday week. A number of poor starving creatures went to the strand for the purpose of searching the sand for a kind of shell called limpets, with which to appease the pangs of ravenous hunger. A small channel lay between these creatures and the sandbank in which they expected to get the fish. One of the hands of a craft that lay at the Pier Head took the ship's boat to ferry them over. It was blowing a heavy gale at the time. The boat being small was not able to resist its violence. It sank, and the women belonging to the men that sat in the boat, with the exception of one little boy, perished, including the kind-hearted sailor who volunteered his boat to carry these ill-fated victims within reach of food.
Died, on the 30th ultimo, at his Glenties House, of malignant typhus fever, contracted in the discharge of his sacred duties, the Rev. Charles C. Beresford, Rector of Ballinacorney, in the diocese of Kilmore. This excellent pastor had long anxiously laboured for the establishment of a fever hospital in Ballinacorney for the sick poor of that district, and through his exertions funds were obtained, and also a presentment granted at the late session for Cavan, for the purpose of the hospital. The building is in progress—but the benevolent projector has not been spared to witness the desire of his heart completed. Another victim from the ranks of the clergy is thus added to the numbers who have yielded up their lives before the pestilence which has so long scourged our afflicted country. He has left a young widow and four children.

In Tipperary a road through a bog near Newport has given way, the recent heavy rains having raised the land at either side more than usual.

As an indication of the value of the barley harvest, a paragraph in a Cork paper is valuable. A sample of barley cut early last week while the weather was still wet, was offered for sale on Saturday, yet the grain was the largest and best description, and the produce as great as was ever known in any previous year.

The military and police have been called upon to aid in the collection of the poor rate in Nenagh.

It is stated that the arrests of parties connected with the late Dublin clubs will not be pursued any further, unless new circumstances should seem to demand it.

Sir C. Napier has unexpectedly returned with the fleet under his command to Cove. He has been a fortnight cruising towards Cape Clare. Several additional steamers were in company.

A person named Nolan, who had come over from New Orleans to visit Ireland, had been arrested in Tipperary.

A fire, which threatened to be extremely destructive at one time, occurred in Dublin on Tuesday night. It originated in Gardner's lane at the rear of Summerhill and Mountjoy squares. The premises which first took fire belonged to a man named McDonnell, a car owner and dairyman, and his premises being filled with hay and straw, the flames raged with great fury. Happily so good a supply of water from well worked engines was brought to bear on the fire, that it did not communicate even with the coach factory of Mr. Hutton, which adjoined. Several houses but of an inferior class, have been demolished.

The Matron of Kinnaree Union has, it appears, been enabled to put the labour of the female paupers under her to good account, and accordingly has been thanked from head quarters. This lady understands the management of wool from its raw state to its being made into cloth, and of flax until its being made into linen, and has caused these processes to go forward within the workhouse, thereby producing sufficient, both of linen and woollen cloth, for all the inmates. It is said that efforts had formerly been made on the first establishment of the poor law system to carry out a similar operation in some unions, but that it was discouraged, as calculated to interfere with free labour outside the workhouse. No doubt that to some extent this is true, but the principle was rightly adhered to, then the paupers would never be permitted to do anything. The consideration in all these cases should be, of course, which plan is more for the public advantage, and also for the special good of the paupers themselves.

Mr. J. O'Connell has addressed a long and laudatory letter to the Repealers of Ireland, calling upon them to rally round the old standard, and stating that unless they do within a month Conciliation Hall and its furniture must be sold.

MR. SMITH O'BRIEN'S PAPERS.—Among the papers said to be amongst the late papers of Mr. Smith O'Brien's portmanteau, is a clergyman (Catholic) who has hitherto figured as a staunch moral force Repealer, and who is somewhat celebrated throughout the south for an extraordinary latitude of tongue. The portmanteau of the "rebel chief" is described as exceedingly characteristic of the man. The letter addresses are all carefully preserved in its original dimensions, while every newspaper paragraph of a complimentary nature—and even a few lines of verse—has been carefully preserved. The letters and speeches are also in a state of the highest preservation.—Times' Correspondent.

WOOL MARKET.

(From Messrs. Hughes and Ronald's Circular.)
WITH the exception of the business done at the public sales on the 10th and 11th ultimo, the demand during the past month was by no means active, which is chiefly to be ascribed to the unfavourable state of the weather, about which much anxiety has been felt; prices notwithstanding have been well supported; and it is gratifying to be able to state, that throughout the manufacturing districts generally, particularly in Yorkshire, the hands are fully employed, and some of the mills which have been for a long time closed have commenced work again. The low price at which goods can now be produced has stimulated the demand, and owing to the reduced value of the raw material, together with the probability that the lowest point has been passed, inspires a feeling of confidence for the future, and the position of the manufacturer is much more encouraging than for some time past. The public sales in London commenced on the 24th ultimo, and will continue for about a fortnight, as it is expected that upwards of 32,000 bales fine colonial wool will be brought forward; so far as they have proceeded, prices are considered about equal to the closing sales of the July series; if any change, it is rather in favour of clean, well-bred flocks, which come into competition with German wools, an advance of about 2d., having taken place in the latter description within the last three months; on the other hand, heavy-conditioned colonial wools, are, if anything, hardly up to the rates referred to. The principal arrivals during the month have been from the west coast, Bombay, Mogador, and Iceland. East India has been in steady request, the demand being chiefly for better qualities. Scotch lambs have been neglected; there is a fair stock in the market of this article, a little has been done in the fleece. Egyptian and Oporto have been in good request, but only best parcels of white fleeces, at full prices. Middle to fine Buenos, if not heavy, are saleable, but at rather lower rates. Since the public sales on the 11th ult., there has been more desire to sell Persian, but nothing has been done of any moment. A fair business has been done in Alpaca, but prices present no particular feature for remark.

In domestic wools the state of business is still characterised by an indisposition on the part of the growers to sell freely at present rates, while consumers purchase with caution, and do not seem inclined to yield their expectations.

ENGLISH WOOL.—No alteration in the English wool trade this week.

FOREIGN WOOL.—The colonial wool sales keep on much in the same way as they began, the prices of last sales being fully maintained, with a good attendance of buyers. The favourable change in the weather has also produced a better feeling as to the trade in general.

33, Dale-street, Liverpool,
September 1, 1848.

The questions of the colonies were brought under the notice of Parliament on the 5th September by the Hon. F. Scott, who was anxious to ask a question, the reply to which might perhaps prevent a useless and unprofitable expenditure of time on the part of those classes which could but ill afford such a loss. The working men of Birmingham had it in contemplation to form a Benefit Emigration Society; but he (Mr. Scott) having written on the subject to the Emigration Commissioners, was informed that it was apprehended that there were legal difficulties with respect to lotteries, which would be an impediment to the carrying out of the project. He wished to know whether the fact was so or not, for if it were so, it was right that the poor should be notified of it, lest they should lose their money. He likewise wished to know whether the bills intended to be introduced next session for effecting alterations in the constitution of New South Wales would contain any provision for conferring the elective franchise on freeholders and squatters beyond the boundaries; a privilege to which they were entitled not only as leaseholders, but as persons of intelligence and property. Mr. Under Secretary Hawes could not answer the first query, as it more properly came within the province of the Attorney-General; as to the latter all he could say was that the Bill referred to as affecting New South Wales would be laid on the table at an early period of the next session of Parliament.

CHURCH DISCIPLINE IN ROME.—Mr. Whiteside, Q.C., relates the following in his recently published work, "Italy in the Nineteenth Century":—"My Italian servant somewhat abruptly entered my room and announced that he should go that moment to confession. I said it was very right that he should attend to his religious duties, but that they should be discharged at a reasonable time of the day, and not just then; but he declared if he did not go instantly he should be arrested, as he had been posted. This assertion as to the arrest I believed to be a fabrication; what the posting meant I did not understand; however, as he put the matter on religious grounds, I yielded, and to confession he went. I immediately enquired what this could mean, and was informed each parish priest keeps a list of those who attend confession at appointed times within their respective parishes, and of those who do not. The latter are warned to attend their duty; failing to obey this notice, their names as defaulters are affixed to the church door; and disregarding this notice for a given time, they are committed to prison. The name of my negligent domestic had been posted, and so in truth he had no time to lose in settling the affair. This, again, is what is meant by discipline of the church, as enforced in Rome, namely, the investing the priests with the power to imprison those who do not obey their spiritual commands; the process is certainly simple. After reading such a statement as this, can we wonder at the cries of death to the priests," which have lately been uttered by the excited populace of Rome?

ITALY.—We stated some time since that the political changes which had taken place in Sicily had placed the long persecuted Vaudois of Piedmont on a footing of equality, as regarded the exercise of religion, with their Roman Catholic fellow-subjects; in one word, that religious freedom had been proclaimed. We regret to find that the proclamation of the King to this effect has been so hampered by conditions as to be little better than a "mockery, a delusion, and a snare." Practically, our Protestant brethren are scarcely a whit better off than they were before. Thus, though the Vaudois may take up their abode in any part of Piedmont, they can only celebrate public worship in the Valleys; and even here, they must first obtain the sanction of a Roman magistrate. The press is declared to be free; but neither Bibles, catechisms, nor religious works can be printed without special license from the Bishop; and any attack, either direct or indirect, upon the Roman Catholic religion is summarily punishable by fine and imprisonment. And this is the liberty accorded to Protestantism. But let our brethren be patient. The time of complete deliverance is not distant.—Bell's Messenger, August 14.

In Arthur Young's Travels in France, from 1787 to 1789, there is a passage indicating a very early knowledge, in a crude form, of the principle and practice of the electric telegraph. "In electricity," he (M. Lomond) has made a remarkable discovery; you write two or three words on a paper; he takes it with him in a room, and turns a machine enclosed in a cylindrical case, at the top of which is an electrometer, a small fine pipe ball; a wire connects with a similar cylinder an electrometer in a distant apartment; and his wife, by remarking the corresponding motions of the ball, writes down the words they indicate; from which it appears that he has formed an alphabet of motions. As the length of wires makes no difference in the effect, a correspondence might be carried on at any distance; within or without a besieged town for instance; or for a purpose much more worthy and a thousand times more harmless, between two towns prohibited or prevented from any better communication."

(From the Times, August 19.)

Such are the men who, by the vigour of the police, were arrested 't'night before last in view of the fact that they were doing it, and impossible to despise them too much, and yet difficult to take sufficient precautions against their diabolical inspirations. Chartism in its present form is not a political, but a criminal movement, and its very conception is a product of date. Chartism is a compound of the worst with murder superadded,—murder in its most cold-blooded and ruffianly form, as in the instance of the unfortunate Ashton policeman, murdered last night. Chartism is a crime in name. Modern Chartism has but three points—fire-raising, bloodshed, and plunder. They are reduced in number, in order to be more summarily enforced. It is for society to consider whether it is worth conceding these three points of murder, fire-raising, and plunder, to take or to leave. We have our choice,

There is one class of society especially concerned in putting down such knots of ruffians as those who have been recently arrested by the police. They are the scum of the artisan and labourer, in whose names the modern Socialism shows that they utterly disavow their proceedings. The labouring classes may feel secure that the cause of tranquillity and public order is not being sacrificed to the cause of the modern Charlemagne, a crusade against the modern ruffians, the thieves, the highway robbers, the beggars, the cottagers, and the shop. If all the towns in the kingdom were burnt to ashes to-morrow, the Duke of Buccleuch, Baron Rothschild, and the Duke of Devonshire, would escape and begin life again with favourable prospects elsewhere. The United States disavow no one in human form with dollars to pay his way. Australia and New Zealand present no obstacle to the emigration of any class. But what would the poor do in such a case? They must perish in the fiery ring with which they had encircled themselves. For them there is no escape. Cultivated to the top of the modern system, they have no commercial credit as the command of its inhabitants, England must yet import food; and, that it may import it, must pay for it in one way or another. What, then, would be the result of the modern Socialism, if it were to hold society together in England were violently rent asunder and destroyed? The example of Paris, and the unprecedented sufferings endured by the poor in the city since the revolution of 1848, are but too obvious. The modern Socialism, by its brutality,—sufferings which have driven them to cast themselves on the bayonets of the soldiers, and before the fire of the artillery, in utter and miserable existence,—should be a warning to the poor in this country how they permit themselves to be deceived by political adventurers, who are merely speculating on their sufferings to attain to the possession of gain or notoriety. Modern Charlemagne, if he were to make a universal conflagration over the country; but, should the measures adopted by the police and the government not prove sufficient to eradicate the cause of the modern suffering classes consider what will be the immediate consequences to themselves in the shape of diminished employment and lower wages. As society stands at present in England, if public order were to be destroyed, no life, and no wealth, the apprehension arises, whether or at home, the first consequence is that workmen must be thrown out of employment. This is no new discovery, but a solemn truth, of which the modern Socialism is the experience. At the present moment, happily, the mills are beginning to work again, and the people all pretence for the brazen falsehood which is every day uttered on the subject by the Irish demagogues: Is Lombardy unproductive or materially wretched under the despotism of Milan? When the laws of Belgium were made by Holland, and the assassin and the gangster peasant the worst lodged, worst fed, worst clothed man in Europe? The reason is obvious. At no time did three-fourths of the Lombards or Belgians leave the soil polluted by the blood of the victims of their political leaders. When the rulers of Lombardy performed it. They did not expect to be fed with manna from Heaven, and rest contented with rotten roots until miracle time. They did not form nocturnal clubs for the purpose of assassinating their rulers, and then give them work and to alter the filthy routine of their daily lives. They did not give ear to the spouting speculators of the Brussels or Milan bazaar. They worked, and they have the fruits of their labour. Their lands are covered with barns and healthy and happy manufacturing, with railroads, with plentiful crops of grain, and all that is needful for the maintenance and luxury of man. Ireland is not so situated in the same condition—but she is not. She should be the quality of the cultivation should be the same as in England, her industrial resources should be developed as those of England are—but no! the bulk of the assassin and the gangster peasant are doing their work. Four millions of people have been thrown, and are likely to be thrown again, upon England—a another province of the empire for support, and all she is likely to get in return is the curse, and ingratitude. The Irish demagogues, curses, and ingratitude. They will do it again. It is a light and easy occupation, befitting their vanity and ignorance. It is a way to live which suits their character. Better anything than the wages of Foreign nations are beginning to understand this fact, and well it is for Ireland as for themselves that it should be so. We have been particularly struck with the altered tone of the late United States journals in speaking of Ireland and Irish matters. However strong the feelings of Irish writers may be to pick a hole in John Bull, they are beginning to experience the Americans are to pick a quarrel to know what is the meaning of an Irish quarter in a city. The idea seems dawning upon them that there is very little of the Pilgrim Fathers about John Mitchell, Smith O'Brien, or Mr. Parnell. They are not blessings to the people amongst whom they live. They are a curse. Were a dozen Irish patriots admitted to

THE IRISH GRIEVANCES.

(From the Times.

The alteration of tone, with regard to Ireland, in the United States, is a very noticeable fact. It is not a mere change of phraseology, but, we should imagine, at a discount. Mitchel and Meagher differ from Blanqui and Barbès only by the absence of brains. In no country is the influence of the press more potent and more completely out of date than in Ireland itself. The property, the education, the intelligence of the country, are all opposed to the cause of the rebels. The only chance if Repeal were granted to-morrow, not a single acre of land would remain in the possession of its present holders. It is well known that so many of the Irish landlords are absentees, and that the great majority of the landowners, and the great majority of the tenants, and that Ireland would present the spectacle of eight millions of people cooped up in an island without food or law; for our countrymen are not more ready to assume responsibility for the obligations which bind us to the Irish themselves, we could not regret the change. We could not but rejoice at an alternative which would give to the Irish people the fields of a numerous and burdensome population, and throw them back on their own country. We should not be sorry to be quit of Ireland in less than a year, and to see the population of Ireland every two or three years. It would be from our own manufacturing district and from our own poor people that a cry would be raised for the repeal of the laws which oppress the "HUMAN FOR IRELAND."

from the Morning Herald, August 1

It is the misfortune of Australia that it is approachable by two routes, and that, pending any decision on the subject of the proposed proposal, steam approaches her by neither. She is the victim of a great question. The question is, whether she is to have steam communication with England via Singapore or via the Cape route. The question is, whether, on respective merits of these two routes, giving our verdict most decisively in favour of the former. During the interval which has elapsed since the question was first publicly discussed, we have consulted with some interest the Australian journals as they have come dropping in by the sailing vessels to ascertain in which direction public opinion in the colonies seems to set; and we have been struck by the unanimity with which the suffrages of the colonists themselves are in favour of the more direct route by Singapore and Torres Straits. There is some diversity of opinion on the subject. The inhabitants of the Cape Colony are to be seen adopting of the Cape route would be less injurious than to residents in the northern settlements, seems to have become reconciled to the route, and is not yet so common in the Cape cases, to see the question of relative advantage considered before that of positive advantage. A short-sighted view of the matter is taken, and the inhabitants of one settlement are against the route, and the inhabitants of another, or the inhabitants of another, than they are to reap the advantages of a comprehensive system, which will enable them to reciprocate the advantages of the route, and the route is larger. The question of steam communication with England is unquestionably one which is likely to be considered in Australia, any more than it was in India, without local jealousies, and without any of the local causes which cause itself. But in India there was much more room for doubt and conflict than there is in Australia. The question of the relative advantage, in respect of the rapidity of postal communication, of the route by the Cape and to Calcutta via Bombay, has not yet been satisfactorily settled; but if rapidity of postal communication be the thing sought, and it is not, the route by the Cape is the better. In this case, in the case of the Australian colonies, be no very knotty points to be con-posed beforehand, and to be subsequently submitted to experiment. It will be urged by the advocates of the Cape route, that the extension of the Singapore line to Australia will not confer on all the colonies the advantages of more rapid and more certain postal communication with the mother country. The interests of the Australian colonies in general demand the completion of the route, but a small colony, such as the Cape Colony, may have something that one settlement should gain as an advantage over another. Even the most favoured settlement will never in the end derive as much advantage from that which merely benefits it, as from that which confers advantages upon all. There is, in reality, no segregation of the report will be, no doubt can be entertained. In the meanwhile a pamphlet has been published in Sydney, under the name of "Adam Bogue," which places the matter in the clearest possible point of view. The facts and arguments adduced by this pamphlet are so convincing, He is a thorough master of the subject, and is well nigh exhausted it. He contends, as we have contended, that the time has not yet come for the abolition of the steam-vessels for general emigration purposes, and in argument in favour of the Cape route in reality derives little or no importance from the idea of the present periodical and irregularly propelled Cape steamers; whilst the necessity of postal, personal, and commercial communication between Australia and India and the consequent necessity of a regular and rapid mode of communication with the colony are possible benefits which the colonies derive from communication with England by way of the Cape. The Singapore route, as we have already observed, is more rapid and more certain. It unites Australia with England by a more direct line, and it unites Australia with the Straits, with the East Indies, and with the Continent of things more worthy of consideration. At the present time, in connexion with the great questions of colonisation and emigration, than the importance of the communication of the continent to European residents in India. It is with their families as settlers. They will carry coloured prisoners if certain individuals were not given up. The sovereignty of the people was never so far carried out as it is now. Certainly the blacks have been unfairly dealt with, but they have been so by the overwhelming insolence of the coloured race, who, however, now pay dearly for their unwise policy. The towns of Mingoane, Aquine, Louisa, and Cavallari, some 247 were either some remainder in the last year or were executed and killed in one way or other; the generals were beheaded, to check the revolution in the bud if possible. His Excellency, the Governor, was afterwards accompanied by his staff and 4000 troops; he left here on the 28th ultimo on his southern tour, and then on the capital. Foreign merchants are respected to a certain degree, but the French are considered the least. The sackings of the above-named towns, that the inhabitants dare not expose their goods, and consequently debts are unpaid to the merchants, and the French are indirectly protected in the hands of the natives are unable to guide themselves—the official posts are all in a mass of corruption—the dollar is not now worth more than 6d., and how the French intend to be able to do business in this one here can solve. With a civilised European power, in the present state, is a happy prospect.

STROUVER'S WILL CASE.—A case, arising out of the will of the late M. William Stackpole, came before the Civil Tribunal at Paris last week. The deceased, a wealthy Irishman, left £3900 to each of his two daughters, Elizabeth and William Stackpole, and £1000 to marry without the consent of their uncle, James Stackpole. Wilhelmina, however, married a M. Khun, a merchant, without this consent, though with the consent of her mother. Her uncle accordingly declined to pay the legacy. She brought an action, but the uncle raised the objection that they were both Irish, and, consequently, not subject to a French court. The court refused to hear the case, but, on appeal, was overruled by the Supreme Court, on the ground that Wilhelmina had become a Frenchwoman by marrying a Frenchman; and a new trial of the case was ordered.

sition to the payment of the legacy of her sister, contending that, not having executed the condition on which their father left it, she was not entitled to it. The tribunal, however, held, that a French Court could not apply the law of the country of the French laws, and that those laws did not require Wilhelmina, after the death of her father, to obtain any other consent to her marriage than that of her mother, which she had. It accordingly declared the condition in the will invalid, and rejected the opposition of Leonora.
